GitHub API calls

Scan Approach

This report was generated from the fixed JSON artifact produced by the PR checker.

- GitHub API only: no clone, no checkout, and no project code execution.
- Checked each current PR commit tree returned by `pulls/{number}/commits`.
- Checked the current final PR file delta returned by `pulls/{number}/files`.
- Scanned added patch lines in the final delta for merge-introducing payloads.
- Recorded per-PR check start and completion timestamps in Eastern time for runs started after this script version.

Branch-Tip Report Relationship

A clean BranchTip report is strong evidence that current branch tips do not contain the checked indicator paths. This PR report is narrower per PR, but deeper for PR reopen decisions.

- It can still flag indicators in the current PR commit list, even if the current branch tip is clean.
- It can still flag suspicious added lines in the final PR delta.
- If BranchTip is clean and this PR's final diff is clean, the result is normally business as usual for reopening from a merge-risk perspective.

PR Metadata Boundary

The scan uses GitHub PR metadata only to locate the source branch, target branch, head SHA, base SHA, current PR commit list, and current PR file list.

It does not inspect PR comments, approvals, review text, timeline events, Teams chat, or old force-pushed-away SHAs unless those SHAs are still in the current PR commit list or supplied as additional commits.

Orphaned Commit Boundary

No orphaned/extra commit SHAs were supplied. This report does not claim GitHub has no orphaned commits; it only covers current PR commit lists, final PR file deltas, and any additional SHAs explicitly supplied.

GitHub can still serve known commit URLs after refs move. This tool cannot reliably enumerate every orphaned or unreachable commit in a repository through the normal GitHub API.

Resume Boundary

Resumed after incident-service#86. This artifact contains only targets after that already-checked PR; earlier clean console output is not reconstructed into this JSON/HTML.

Confidence

This is confidence in the listed Miasma indicator check only. It is not a general malware, secrets, endpoint, or supply-chain audit.

A clean PR with warnings may still be reopenable, but the warning explains why the report gives lower confidence or calls for a manual look.

No blocking Miasma indicators were found, but PRs with warning-based recommendations should be reviewed before whitelist/reopen handling.
